VI. Textbook:

VII. Basis for Student Evaluation:
   A. Write a ten to twelve page review of the literature on an eating disorders related topic of your choice. Possible topics include eating disorders in males, nutritional consequences of eating disorders, the role of family in the development of eating disorders, and eating disorders among athletes. Include at least 12 references from professional journals. Use APA style within the paper and for your reference list. Present your findings to the class.

B. Write a summary and clinical interpretation after viewing a video-taped case on eating disorders. Discuss the implications for treatment and how each member of the treatment team would effectively intervene. Consider the appropriate level of treatment, research-based forms of effective treatment, nutrition, how the family is be included in treatment, and the continuum of care in considering follow up treatment.

C. Summarize and present a peer-reviewed journal article addressing treatment issues for body image disturbances.

D. Develop a program for the prevention of body image disturbances. Identify the population you are targeting, the setting for your program, the objectives, the program activities and rationale to meet the objectives. Also include an assessment component in your program to assess progress in achieving the objectives. Consider culture, gender, and trauma when developing your program. Include references.

E. Consider your role in the eating disorder treatment team and how you may facilitate and hinder client progress. Write in a personal self reflection journal weekly to express your own reactions to course material, your relationship with food, and the issues associated with eating disorders.

E. All students are expected to participate in class discussions, activities, and role plays. From a constructivist orientation, each member of the class contributes to the overall learning process.

F. Two written examinations will be given, one at midterm and one final.
